

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let me introduce our new director of technology!

Learning Outcome:

Identify key information about people's jobs and places of work in spoken or written contexts.

Identify key information about people's jobs and places of work in spoken or written contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are the most important job positions in IT?
- Who are the most important technology executives in the world?

Can Do Statements:

- I can talk about duties and responsibilities related to job positions in IT.
- I can discuss why an IT company needs a director of technology.
- I can ask questions related to a job occupation.

Let's Explore!

I'm here for the job position of technology director!

Instructions: Read the text below.

Miss Allen: Good afternoon, are you Mr. Wilson?

Mr. Wilson: Good afternoon. Yes, I am. I'm here for the technology director position.

Miss Allen: You know, we really need a director of technology for our company since someone is necessary to manage our multiple projects. It is very important that this director has leadership skills and doesn't run out of steam when facing any problem. This person needs to have vast knowledge to determine what the best technologies to implement are and which procedures and policies to follow in any particular situation.

Mr. Wilson: I see.

Miss Allen: Now then, which duties and responsibilities do you consider this job position requires?

Mr. Wilson: Well, a technology director has to be in charge of a few duties. First, developing IT programs. Second, implementing appropriate strategies. And third, supporting all IT-related processes. On the other hand, even if it's true that this person doesn't have to program or create apps, he must monitor, evaluate and approve any update, enhancement or replacement.

Miss Allen: Congratulations, you're hired.

Mr. Wilson: Thanks, I promise the technology department is going to work like a well-oiled machine.

Miss Allen: Do you have any questions about your new position?

Mr. Wilson: Yes! Do I have to handle the contract negotiations?

Miss Allen: Yes, you do.

Mr. Wilson: All right! Do I need to administer the security systems?

Miss Allen: No, you don't administer the security systems. Our computer security specialist manages that area.

Mr. Wilson: When should I start?

Miss Allen: If it's possible today. We have many issues to talk about.

Mr. Wilson: Okay! Could I take a previous look at the existing systems?

Miss Allen: Of course. Let's go.

Let's Practice!

Miss Allen explains to Mr. Wilson what the main duties of his job are.

Instructions: Circle the correct option to complete the sentences.

1. A technology director (must administrate / must to administrate) IT programs well, so the informatics system can work as a well-oiled machine.
2. These kind of directors (has to evaluate / have to evaluate) everything constantly and make changes if necessary to the strategy implemented.
3. The strategy implementation (should improve / should improves) with management of a technology director.

Let's Practice!

Miss Allen asks some questions related to a job occupations to Mr. Wilson.

Instructions: Select the correct answer.

1. How is the job so far?
 - a. It's good, but I not have a clear knowledge about how to manage the contract negotiations.
 - b. It's good, but I have a clear knowledge about how to manage the contract negotiations.
 - c. It's good, but I doesn't have a clear knowledge about how to manage the contract negotiations.
 - d. It's good, but I don't have a clear knowledge about how to manage the contract negotiations.
2. Do you manage the security or the development of the system?
 - a. As a technology director, I handles the development of IT programs.
 - b. As a technology director, i handle the development of it programs.
 - c. As a technology director, I don't handle the development of IT As a technology director, I doesn't handle the development of IT programs.
3. Does a technology director create the IT applications?
 - a. No, he don't. He controls, values and approves these applications.
 - b. No, he doesn't. He controls, value and approves these applications.
 - c. No, he doesn't. He control, value and approve these applications.
4. No, he doesn't. He controls, values and approves these applications. Does a technology director design software?
 - a. No, he doesn't. He has to monitor, evaluate and approve any updates.
 - b. Yes, he does. He works side-by-side with the software.
 - c. No, he hasn't. He doesn't know how to.
 - d. Yes, he do. Because he have to.
5. Which are the main duties that programmer has to achieve in his labor?
 - a. He has to identify the codes, debug programs by testing in order to fix errors and write program by using different computer languages.
 - b. He have to identify the codes, debug programs by testing in order to fix errors and write program by using different computer languages.
 - c. He doesn't have to identify the codes, debug programs by testing in order to fix errors and write program by using different computer languages.
 - d. He has to identifies the codes, debug programs by testing in order to fix errors and write program by using different computer languages.
6. Besides developing IT programs, do you have to handle contract negotiations?
 - a. Yes, I do have to handle those types of negotiations.
 - b. No, I will handle contract negotiations.
 - c. He does not have to handle contract negotiations.
 - d. She does not handle contract negotiations.

Extension Activity

A Technology Director in Your Community.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Look for a job offer as a technology director and read the requirements.
- Write a cover letter to the owner of the company explaining why you are the best candidate for that position.
- Don't forget to include the grammar and the vocabulary of this lesson.
- Share your work with a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

- I search for a job offer as a technology director and read the requirements.
- I write a cover letter to the owner of the company explaining why I am the best candidate for that position.
- I include the corresponding grammar and the vocabulary of the lesson and I share my work with a partner.

☐ ☐
☐ ☐
☐ ☐

Target Words

- apps (noun): abbreviation of the computing word applications
e.g. If it's true that he doesn't have to program or create apps, he must monitor, evaluate and approve any update.
- enhancement (noun): an improvement in something
e.g. He must monitor, evaluate and approve any update, enhancement or replacement.
- negotiation (noun): a mutual agreement between two or more parties
e.g. Do I have to handle the contract negotiations?

- apps (noun): abbreviation of the computing word applications
e.g. If it's true that he doesn't have to program or create apps, he must monitor, evaluate and approve any update.
- enhancement (noun): an improvement in something
e.g. He must monitor, evaluate and approve any update, enhancement or replacement.
- negotiation (noun): a mutual agreement between two or more parties
e.g. Do I have to handle the contract negotiations?

Learning Points

Simple Present Tense Review to Talk About Duties and Occupations.

To state information related to occupations and duties you can use the simple present tense, in affirmative, negative and interrogative forms respectively.

Affirmative form

Subject + Main verb + Complement

Example:

- Jeremy manages the contract negotiations with other companies.

You add an "S" to the verbs conjugated with the third persons of singular: he, she and it.

Negative form

Subject + Auxiliary verb Do / Does + NOT + Main verb + Complement.

Example:

- Jeremy doesn't manage the contract negotiations with other companies.

In the negative form, it's important to know that you can make the auxiliary verb shorter by using contractions:

Do + not = Don't - Does + not = Doesn't

You use the auxiliary do with the subject pronouns I, you, we and they. On the other hand, you use the auxiliary does with the subject pronouns he, she and it.

Interrogative form

Auxiliary verb Do / Does + Subject + Main verb + Complement +?

Example:

- Does Jeremy manage the contract negotiations with other companies?
 - Yes, he does.
 - No, he doesn't.

You use the auxiliary verbs do and does the same as the negative form.

Check the following chart with more examples in the affirmative, negative and interrogative forms.

Learning Points

SIMPLE PRESENT TENSE
Affirmative	Negative	Interrogative
I create procedure manuals.	I don't create procedure manuals.	Do you create procedure manuals? Yes, I do. No, I don't.
Ginna handles decisive technology projects.	Ginna doesn't handle decisive technology projects.	Does Ginna handle decisive technology projects? Yes, she does. No, she doesn't.

Examples

- Our computer security specialist manages that area.
- Do I need to administer the security systems?
- You don't administer the security systems.

Idioms on Technology.

Idioms on Technology are very usual in everyday language. It's important to know their accurate meaning in order to use them in your professional field, as well as in your daily conversations.

In the chart below, you can find three interesting idioms which come from the tech vocabulary:

Technology Idioms
Idiom	Meaning
1. Run out of steam	To lose the impetus of doing something.
2. Sputnik moment	To realize that you need to catch up with your goals or projects, even if you have to ask others for help.
3. Well-oiled machine	When everything in a company operates in the right way, you can say that it's a well-oiled machine. A well-oiled machine works well.

Examples

- It's very important that this director has leadership skills and doesn't run out of steam when facing any problem.
- I promise the technology department is going to work like a well-oiled machine.

